of the afternoon was the debut of Heno and Blues, one a supposedly crack three-year-oid and the other a possible Brookbyn Handicap winner. They were observed most critically. The attendance was large and betting heavy enough to keep the books busy.

Start good. Wen easily. Time—127 1-4.

Hatasoo raced away in front, had all her old speed and never came back. Sine seemed to be stopping a bit at the end, but lasted long enough to win by a length from Kamara, who got up in time to beat Whiskey King a length for the place. Smart Set was close up for half the distance. o keep the books busy. FIRST RACE.

The race was only a big gallop for Heno. He and Bon Mot raced together for a quarter, steadily outrunning Col. Bill. who was a bit tangled at the start. On the turn Heno went to the front and was up in Burns's lap all the rest of the route, winning as he pleased by three lengths from Bon Mot. who was eight engths in front of Col. Bill. SECOND RACE.

Most Populous Portion of St. Pierre Buried, Under a Lava Twenty-five Feet Thick, and the Awful Heat Cremated the Unfortunates.

President Roosevelt this afternoon called on the entire nation to go to the relief of victims of the voicano on the Island of Martinique. He made an appeal for funds and appointed a committee to re him in the collection of money.

The Senate passed a bill appropriating $500,000 for relief work. This bill was referred by the House Appropriations Committee.

BODIES OF THE VICTIMS CONSUMED. BY GREAT STREAMS OF BOILING LAVA.

FORT DE FRANCE, ISLAND OF MARTINIQUE, May 18 .- In view of the number of the inhabitants of St. Pierrs who were suept to death by the volcanic waves from Mount Pelce, comparatively few corpees have been found by these who are engaged in the work of cremating the dead bodies of the victims.

This is due to the fact that the most populous quarters of the town are buried under a thick layer of sin dered lava, which apparently consumed the bodies of the victims. The specie in the public Treasury at St Pierre is still buried under a layer of lava about six to eight meters thick (from twenty to twenty-six feet). This indicates the thickness of the lave which

The nath of the volcanic torrent is marked in a strange manner. The vicinity of the shore, where ver anchored, was ewept by a whirlwind of volcanic gas which ripped, tore and shattered everything in its passage but left few traces of cinders behind. On the other hand the fort, centre and adjoining parts of St. Pierre are buried under a thick bed of cinders which consumed everything beneath it.

The Danish cruiser Valkyrien, having done everything possible in the efforts being made to succor the refugees, left this port to-day. The erman cruiser Falke has just arrived.

Public interest centres in the stories of the victims and in the efforts being made to succor the refuges A woman named Laurent, who was employed as a servant at St. Pierre in the household of M. Gabriel, in the hospital in this city, said that on the day of the disaster she first heard a loud report. She fainted away and when she regained consciousness a few hours later, she was horribly burned. She saw two members of the Gabriel family still alive, but they died before assistance could reach them. Mile. Laurent was brought to the hospital here, and although she lived for some time after her arrival she died without being able to throw any additional light upon the awful scenes at St. Pierre.

WORK OF RESCUE GOES ON.

When the cable repair ship Pouyer-Quertier, Capt. Thirion, started on her mission of mercy, she had to pass through clouds of burning cinders at the risk of catching fire, in order to reach the terror-stricken peodents of the village of Le Precheur. This was on Saturday last. Since then the steamer, as the result of other daring trips, has succeeded in bringing many other persons to Fort de France. On Sunday she rescued 923 parsons, and piloted the French cruiser Suchet and the Danish cruiser Valkyrien, who took on board fifteen
